

Money can buy happiness

OUR commitment needs YOUR commitment

Because without your continued help it will not be possible to carry on doing all the things we do for people like Barney, Sarah and their families.

Not forgetting our other work in funding research and developing educational programmes.

Our hope

We'd like you to continue supporting us with your donations and, if possible, do this on a regular basis which means that we can honour our commitment and plan for the future.

Thank you for your continued support.

Your generosity helps

ASBAH is lucky in that we can count on many friends whose generosity and support has enabled us in recent years to make great progress with our work and the services we provide.

As one of our friends and supporters, we are more than grateful to you in helping us to get this far. Quite simply, without you it would not have been possible.

Their happiness matters

Your support has helped bring real positive change - change for the better, for people like:

Barney Nicholls Sykes, whose mother Lisa says: "Neurosurgeons don't have time to explain things thoroughly or answer all our questions. We contacted ASBAH when Barney was diagnosed and I know that I can contact their medical advisers at any time. This is especially vital if I think I need to take Barney to hospital - it can literally be a matter of life or death"

Sarah Switzer, whose mother Patricia said: "The family weekend was a very positive experience for all of us. After meeting other children with spina bifida, Sarah doesn't feel she's the odd one out any more.

"ASBAH has also been helpful in providing printed information to help the teachers at Sarah's new school understand about spina bifida."

Each story has one thing in common:

they and their families are happier, more secure and more able to get on with their lives as a result of your kindness. Kindness that pays, for happiness that speaks volumes.
